Hallowe'en Spirit Is Filling Circleville With Many Pranks

If your front steps are missing; if your car is parked in the wrong place with the windows soaped or the horn blowing; if you see ghosts walking; if you attempt to pick up a pocketbook glued to the sidewalk or jerked by a string out of your reach, or anything else happens out of the ordinary, don't be alarmed. It is just the spirit of Hallowe'en which pervades Circleville.

The time is drawing near when ghosts are about to walk, bones to rattle and a lot of funny things to happen. But it is just Hallowe'en and it only comes once a year.

CARPET IS NEEDED IN MISSION CHURCH

Covering For Rostrum and Aisle Is Asked By Worthy Congregation.

There is a church on Hayward-ave in Circleville that is known as the North End Mission. No end of good has been accomplished by the leaders in this little chapel, which has existed for quite a number of year, financed for the most part by its faithful members.

At rare intervals organizations have made donations to the church to keep it going and at rarer intervals the church has asked for articles or money that it needs.

At the present time this thrifty group of Christian workers is asking for a carpet with which to cover the floor of the rostrum of the church, and for a runner to place in the aisle to the altar. There are certainly carpets in Circleville that are not in use and that should be used for this splendid purpose. If any one has such a carpet, he is asked to see Mrs. Perry Frazier, Park-st, or call telephone 813.

The North End Mission is planning a revival which will begin next Sunday and which will continue for two weeks. The Rev. Frank Williamson, of Amanda, will have charge of these services.

BUY, BUILD AND BELIEVE IN CIRCLEVILLE IS CITY SLOGAN

A patriotic appeal for home-town loyalty is being broadcast in the columns of this issue by the town-boosting committee of the local business interests. This appeal shows just way the citizens of this community should BUY, BUILD, and BELIEVE in Circleville.

The boosting committee urges loyalty to home enterprises, the building of homes in Circleville and hearty co-operation with its efforts to make our town a better place in which to live.

There are advantages in buying right here in Circleville which one does not get when he or she makes purchases outside of the town. One deals here with friends and neighbors who enjoy a mutual confidence and who are deeply interested in the community's welfare.

When you BUY from Circleville merchants, you see just what you are getting before you buy, without taking any chances on dissatisfaction. The home merchant is always anxious and willing to make fair adjustments for he appreciates your trade and wants you to be fully satisfied.

Personally, we feel that Circleville is the best town in the country. That's why we're here instead of elsewhere. There may be places of larger size, other towns where is probably some outstanding feature but when it comes to all-around contentment, opportunities and happiness of living, we believe that Circleville has it on the rest of the world.

The boosting committee's advice to BUILD in Circleville is of good foundation. Our progressive town offers practically every advantage that a citizen needs or wants and there are opportunities aplenty for the children—opportunities that very few towns of this size can duplicate.

When a man owns his own home, he seems to take a greater interest in things that go on about him. He is more vitally interested in the government of the town. He lends energy and co-operation toward "putting the town over" in the proper measure. He keeps his own home more attractive and thus adds to the beauty of the city.

Not all of us can own our own homes, but those who can should contemplate building right here in Circleville, where they will find their best opportunities. Property values are stable, taxes are moderate and the possibilities for service are practically unlimited.

Finally, BELIEVING in Circleville's future is important. No great accomplishment is brought about without the firm foundation of Faith. When we all BELIEVE implicitly that Circleville can and will be improved in every way, and then set forth actively to bring about those improved conditions, wonderful strides toward community progress will have been made.

The progress of a town lies within the hearts of its citizens. Progress must first be conceived in the mind and then reached by genuine co-operation of the town's citizens.

YOUNG BRIDE NEAR DEATH FROM BURNS

Mrs. Goldie Speakman Probably Victim of Fire At Royalton Home.

Mrs. Goldie Speakman, bride of Earl Speakman, who reside in Royalton, Fairfield-co, was probably fatally burned Monday at 6 a. m. when she attempted to start a fire in her kitchen stove with what was supposed was kerosene but which proved to be gasoline.

Mr. and Mrs. Speakman had arisen and while Mr. Speakman was doing the chores about the yard Mrs. Speakman was preparing the breakfast. The fire in the range would not burn to her satisfaction and she attempted to renew it by pouring on the kerosene. Evidently there was only a small portion of the fluid in the can as the range was not damaged. The can which Mrs. Speakman held in her hands was blown to pieces and the fire that resulted burned her hands, arms, neck and face.

RUNS INTO YARD.

Mrs. Speakman ran into the dooryard screaming and her husband found her enveloped in flames. John Faust, a neighbor, heard Mrs. Speakman cry and ran to her, covering her with pieces of carpet to extinguish the flames.

Mr. Faust was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Alva Hicks and Ira Young, also neighbors, who heard the screams of the stricken woman.

Dr. Dunlap, of Royalton, was called and administered first aid and ordered Mrs. Speakman taken to the Lancaster hospital immediately. Dr. Dunlap holds no hope for her recovery as he fears that she has inhaled some of the flames.

The flesh on her arms was so horribly burned that it fell from the bones when the doctor attempted to administer to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Speakman were married about four months ago, and resided in the little village of Royalton while Mr. Speakman is employed on the farm of Edward DeLong.

Word from the Lancaster hospital at noon Monday was that Mrs Speakman's death is expected momentarily.

CAMPAIGN IN LAST STRETCH

Both Presidential Candidates Will Be Active During Final Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — A week from tomorrow it will be all over but the shouting.

On Nov. 6, men and women voters, probably to the number of 35,000,000 to 40,000,000, will go to the polls throughout the United States to decide whether Herbert Hoover or Gov. Alfred E. Smith shall be president for the next four years.

Both candidates are putting in their supreme vote-getting efforts into this last week. With Smith in Baltimore today and hitting hard for eastern strength, Hoover is planning to start from here Thursday for his Palo Alto, Calif., home to vote. Enroute, he will speak Friday at St. Louis, Mo.—a district which Republicans admit needs strong pressure in the closing campaign hours.

Farm relief, inland waterways and perhaps more of the question of "state socialism," are likely to be his final themes.

The past week has seen several important peaks in the campaign rush.

In the first place, Hoover at New York last Monday charged that Smith's program on water power, farm relief and prohibition represented "state socialism." It was perhaps Hoover's sharpest attack on his opponent. Smith answered it in Boston two nights later.

Citing some prominent Republicans who agree with his previous waterpower suggestions, Smith insisted they must be labelled state socialists too, if he is to be so characterized.

The next sensation was Senator George Norris' declaration for Smith. The progressive Nebraskan Republican Senator held progressives could not logically support Hoover. Democrats foresaw his statement would have considerable effect in Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Republicans maintained it could not upset the situation materially at this late date.

The final burst of the past week was Hoover's announcement he would call an extra session to deal with farm relief if the December short session does not handle that problem.

GIANT CRAFT OVER SEA ON RETURN TRIP

Dirigible Makes Surprise Departure From Lakehurst Early Monday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Through clear skies and over calm seas the dirigible Graf Zeppelin sailed homeward today in a direct course towards Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Latest advices by radio and from ships at sea indicated the silvery air liner—first airship to inaugurate trans-Altnatic commercial air service—was traveling at between 70 and 80 miles an hour in a bee-line for its home port.

Earlier belief she would go up the New England coast was dispelled by latest reports which showed the Graf Zeppelin south of Nova Scotia and following the trans-Atlantic steamer lanes towards Europe.

The departure of the trans-Atlantic dirigible came as a surprise. Shortly before 1 a.m., the wind which had been blowing across the doors of the hangar, shifted and blew along the length of the big structure. The passengers and crew of the Zeppelin had been at their stations and in their seats at 12:30 a.m.

The ground crew of 500 navy men knocked the props from under the airship and started walking her out of the hangar where she had been berthed along with the Los Angeles and two smaller dirigibles.

As the long bag cleared the hangar at 1:33 a.m. a scattered crowd of about 1,000 persons, including members of the ground crew, marines, reporters, photographers, and sightseers, ran across the field following the ship and waving their hands to those who peered from the cabin.

NEW PASSENGERS

On board the Graf Zeppelin besides the officers and crew that brought her westward over the Atlantic were included the following persons making their initial voyage on the airship:

Mrs. Clara Adams, wife of George L. Adams, retired manufacturer of Tannersville, Pa.; Allen Miller, British war flier and director of Amedisa Accumulators, of London; Donald M. Casto, of Columbus, O., also a wartime aviator; Paul M. Marks, of the Marko Storage Battery Co., of Brooklyn; Joseph D. Jessel, vice president of Ullman-Jessel Inc., of New York; F. W. Van Meister, New York representative of the Maybach Motor Co., the motors used on the Zeppelin; George M. Crouse, president of Crouse Groceries, of Syracuse, N. Y., John C. Ingram, William Schulze, New York correspondents of Ullstein Press, Berlin; Commander M. R. Pierce executive officer of the naval air station here; Lieut. Charles C. Bauch, watch officer of the dirigible Los Angeles; Lieut T G W. Settle, engineering officer of the Los Angeles; and Hans W. Nohl, hosiery manufacturer of Reading Pa.

MAKING ROUND TRIP

Among the passengers who are completing the round trip on the Graf Zeppelin were:

Ernst Brandenburg of the German Ministry of Transp[illegible]; Dr. Krueger, of the German Aeronautical Testing institution; Dr. [illegible] Beck, of the Telefunken Co. of Berlin; Dr. Ludwig Dettman, German painter, Berlin, Rolf Brandt, correspondent of the Berlin Berliner Anzeiter; Theodore [illegible] Berlin newspaper cartoonist; Paul Hartman, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and International Newsreel cameraman; and Mr. Meyer, U. F. A. Film Co. camera man.

YOUNG BRIDE NEAR DEATH FROM BURNS

Mrs. Goldie Speakman, bride of Earl Speakman, who reside in Royalton, Fairfield-co, was probably fatally burned Monday at 6 a. m. when she attempted to start a fire in her kitchen stove with what was supposed was kerosene but which proved to be gasoline.

Mr. and Mrs. Speakman had arisen and while Mr. Speakman was doing the chores about the yard Mrs. Speakman was preparing the breakfast. The fire in the range would not burn to her satisfaction and she attempted to renew it by pouring on the kerosene. Evidently there was only a small portion of the fluid in the can as the range was not damaged. The can which Mrs. Speakman held in her hands was blown to pieces and the fire that resulted burned her hands, arms, neck and face.

RUNS INTO YARD.

Mrs. Speakman ran into the dooryard screaming and her husband found her enveloped in flames. John Faust, a neighbor, heard Mrs. Speakman cry and ran to her, covering her with pieces of carpet to extinguish the flames.

Mr. Faust was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Alva Hicks and Ira Young, also neighbors, who heard the screams of the stricken woman.

Dr. Dunlap, of Royalton, was called and administered first aid and ordered Mrs. Speakman taken to the Lancaster hospital immediately. Dr. Dunlap holds no hope for her recovery as he fears that she has inhaled some of the flames.

The flesh on her arms was so horribly burned that it fell from the bones when the doctor attempted to administer to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Speakman were married about four months ago, and resided in the little village of Royalton while Mr. Speakman is employed on the farm of Edward DeLong.

Word from the Lancaster hospital at noon Monday was that Mrs. Speakman's death is expected momentarily.

BUY, BUILD AND BELIEVE IN CIRCLEVILLE IS CITY SLOGAN

A patriotic appeal for home town loyalty is being broadcast in the columns of this issue by the town-boosting committee of the local business interests. This appeal shows just why the citizens of this community should BUY, BUILD, and BELIEVE in Circleville.

The boosting committee urges loyalty to home enterprises, the building of homes in Circleville and hearty co-operation with its efforts to make our town a better place in which to live.

There are advantages in buying right here in Circleville which one does not get when he or she makes purchases outside of the town. One deals here with friends and neighbors who enjoy a mutual confidence and who are deeply interested in the community's welfare.

When you BUY from Circleville merchants, you see just what you are getting before you buy, without taking any chances on dissatisfaction. The home merchant is always anxious and willing to make fair adjustments for he appreciates your trade and wants you to be fully satisfied.

Personally, we feel that Circleville is the best town in the country. That's why we're here instead of elsewhere. There may be places of larger size, other towns where is probably some outstanding feature, but when it comes to all-around contentment, opportunities and happiness of living, we believe that Circleville has it on the rest of the world.

The boosting committee's advice to BUILD in Circleville is of good foundation. Our progressive town offers practically every advantage that a citizen needs or wants and there are opportunities aplenty for the children—opportunities that very few towns of this size can duplicate.

When a man owns his own home, he seems to take a greater interest in things that go on about him. He is more vitally interested in the government of the town. He lends energy and co-operation toward "putting the town over" in the proper measure. He keeps his own home more attractive and thus adds to the beauty of the city.

Not all of us can own our own homes, but those who can should contemplate building right here in Circleville, where they will find their best opportunities. Property values are stable, taxes are moderate and the possibilities for service are practically unlimited.

Finally, BELIEVING in Circleville's future is important. No great accomplishment is brought about without the firm foundation of Faith. When we all BELIEVE implicitly that Circleville can and will be improved in every way, and then set forth actively to bring about those improved conditions, wonderful strides toward community progress will have been made.

The progress of a town lies within the hearts of its citizens. Progress must first be conceived in the mind and then reached by genuine co-operation of the town's citizens.

CHILLICOTHE, Oct. 29—A pie social was being held at the Piney Creek school house in Harrison-twp, Ross-co Friday evening under the direction of Mrs. Grover Merriman, the teacher, when Ollie Skaggs started a disturbance outside.

Skaggs made so much noise Mr. Merriman went out to stop it. In the melee Merriman was severely cut. He suffers a long cut on the hip, two deep gashes on the left side above the diaphragm, six cuts deep into his left arm which laid the muscles bare and one which almost punctured the abdomen. Fifty stitches were required to close the wounds.

It is said Skaggs was chased by Merriman for 100 yards before he fell from the loss of blood.

CAMPAIGN IN LAST STRETCH

Both Presidential Candidates Will Be Active During Final Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — A week from tomorrow it will be all over but the shouting.

On Nov. 6, men and women voters, probably to the number of 35,000,000 to 40,000,000, will go to the polls throughout the United States to decide whether Herbert Hoover or Gov. Alfred E. Smith shall be president for the next four years.

Both candidates are putting in their supreme vote-getting efforts into this last week. With Smith in Baltimore today and hitting hard for eastern strength, Hoover is planning to start from here Thursday for his Palo Alto, Calif., home to vote. Enroute, he will speak Friday at St. Louis, Mo.—a district which Republicans admit needs strong pressure in the closing campaign hours .

Farm relief, inland waterways and perhaps more of the question of "state socialism," are likely to be his final themes.

The past week has seen several important peaks in the campaign rush.

In the first place, Hoover at New York last Monday charged that Smith's program on water power, farm relief and prohibition represented "state socialism." It was perhaps Hoover's sharpest attack on his opponent. Smith answered it in Boston two nights later.

Citing some prominent Republicans who agree with his previous waterpower suggestions, Smith insisted they must be labelled state socialists too, if he is to be so characterized.

The next sensation was Senator George Norris' declaration for Smith. The progressive Nebraskan Republican Senator held progressives could not logically support Hoover. Democrats foresaw his statement would have considerable effect in Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Republicans maintained it could not upset the situation materially at this late date.

The final burst of the past week was Hoover's announcement he would call an extra session to deal with farm relief if the December short session does not handle that problem.

GIANT CRAFT OVER SEA ON RETURN TRIP

Dirigible Makes Surprise Departure From Lakehurst Early Monday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Through clear skies and over calm seas the dirigible Graf Zeppelin sailed homeward today in a direct course towards Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Latest advices by radio and from ships at sea indicated the silvery air liner—first airship to inaugurate trans-Altnatic commercial air service—was traveling at between 70 and 80 miles an hour in a bee-line for its home port.

Earlier belief she would go up the New England coast was dispelled by latest reports which showed the Graf Zeppelin south of Nova Scotia and following the trans-Atlantic steamer lanes towards Europe.

The departure of the trans-Atlantic dirigible came as a surprise. Shortly before 1 a.m., the wind, which had been blowing across the doors of the hangar, shifted and blew along the length of the big structure. The passengers and crew of the Zeppelin had been at their stations and in their seats at 12:30 a.m.

The ground crew of 500 navy men knocked the props from under the airship and started walking her out of the hangar where she had been berthed along with the Los Angeles and two smaller dirigibles.

As the long bag cleared the hangar at 1:33 a.m. a scattered crowd of about 1,000 persons, including members of the ground crew, marines, reporters, photographers, and sightseers, ran across the field following the ship and waving their hands to those who peered from the cabin.

NEW PASSENGERS

On board the Graf Zeppelin besides the officers and crew that brought her westward over the Atlantic were included the following persons making their initial voyage on the airship:

Mrs. Clara Adams, wife of George L. Adams, retired manufacturer of Tannersville, Pa.; Allen Miller, British war flier and director of Amedisa Accumlators, of London; Donald M. Casto, of Columbus, O., also a wartime aviator; Paul M. Marks, of the Marko Storage Battery Co., of Brooklyn; Joseph D. Jessel, vice president of Ullman-Jessel Inc., of New York; F. W. Van Meister, New York representative of the Maybach Motor Co., the motors used on the Zeppelin; George M. Crouse, president of Crouse Groceries, of Syracuse, N. Y., John C. Ingram, William Schulze, New York correspondents of Ullstein Press, Berlin; Commander M. R. Pierce, executive officer of the naval air station here; Lieut. Charles C. Bauch, watch officer of the dirigible Los Angeles; Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, engineering officer of the Los Angeles; and Hans W. Nolde, hosiery manufacturer of Reading, Pa.

MAKING ROUND TRIP

Among the passengers who are completing the round trip on the Graf Zeppelin were:

Ernst Brandenburg of the German Ministry of Transport; Dr. Krueger, of the German Aeronautical Testing institution; Engineer Beck, of the Telefuiken Co., of Berlin; Dr. Ludwig Dettman, German painter, Berlin; Rolf Brandt, correspondent of the Berlin Pokal Anzeiter; Theodore Matajko, Berlin newspaper cartoonist; Rudolf Hartman, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and International Newsreel camera man; and Mr. Meyer, U. F. A. Film Co., camera man.

Three Teams in Running for Big Ten Titl

STATE STANDS ON THRESHOLD OF NEW TITLE

Defeat of Strong Indiana Team Places Wilcemen Among Leaders.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28. — Ohio State University's grid warriors stood today on the brink of another Big Ten Conference title.

By virtue of their win over the stubborn Indiana crimson Saturday, the Bucks ran their total of conference wins to three games in three starts, and are tied with Iowa and Illinois for first place.

The Scarlet and Grey beat Indiana 13 to 0. The victory was decisive and means that if Iowa or Illinois intend to win the title, they will have to overcome one of the most powerful teams in the conference.

TWO FAVORITES

Ohio State and Iowa are considered the strongest contenders inasmuch as Illinois barely beat Indiana and Northwestern, each of which proved easy victims for the Bucks.

The Iowa Hawkeyes, on the other hand, beat the highly touted Minnesota team and therefore appear slightly stronger than Coach Doc Wilce's men.

The Ohio State warriors play Princeton in their annual homecoming game here next Saturday, then will be groomed for their last two conference tilts—against Iowa and Illinois.

The Bucks have been scored on only once this season having beaten Michigan, Northwestern and Indiana.

ONE CONTENDER LESS

The list of Big Ten title contenders was narrowed by one when Iowa beat Minnesota. The game was a complete upset and was almost a case of where an irresistible force meets an immovable object. Both teams scored touchdowns but unlike Minnesota, Iowa's center managed to kick goal, thus giving the Hawkeyes a one-point margin.

MR. A. R. McELWAIN.

Be not discouraged, if all else has failed, for there remains Konjola, the master remedy. Its chief fame rests upon its unbounded success in cases that have resisted treatment year after year. Take the case of Mr. A. R. McElwain, 641 Grandview Avenue, Steubenville, O., who says:

"Though hungry I could not eat, for the pains that followed were torture. Then came terrific headaches, lasting for days. My kidneys were sorely affected, and because of this I lost much sleep at night. My ankles were swollen, and pains pierced my limbs and back. Nothing helped me, and my work in the steel mills became almost impossible. Listening to advice, I started on Konjola; it was exactly what I needed and never found before. A brief treatment and I was a new man, well in every way; freed from all my aches and pains. My strength is returning day by day, and my work is a joy. Konjola is wonderful beyond words. I hope this message reaches all who are going through what I did and from the suffering that this amazing medicine saved me."

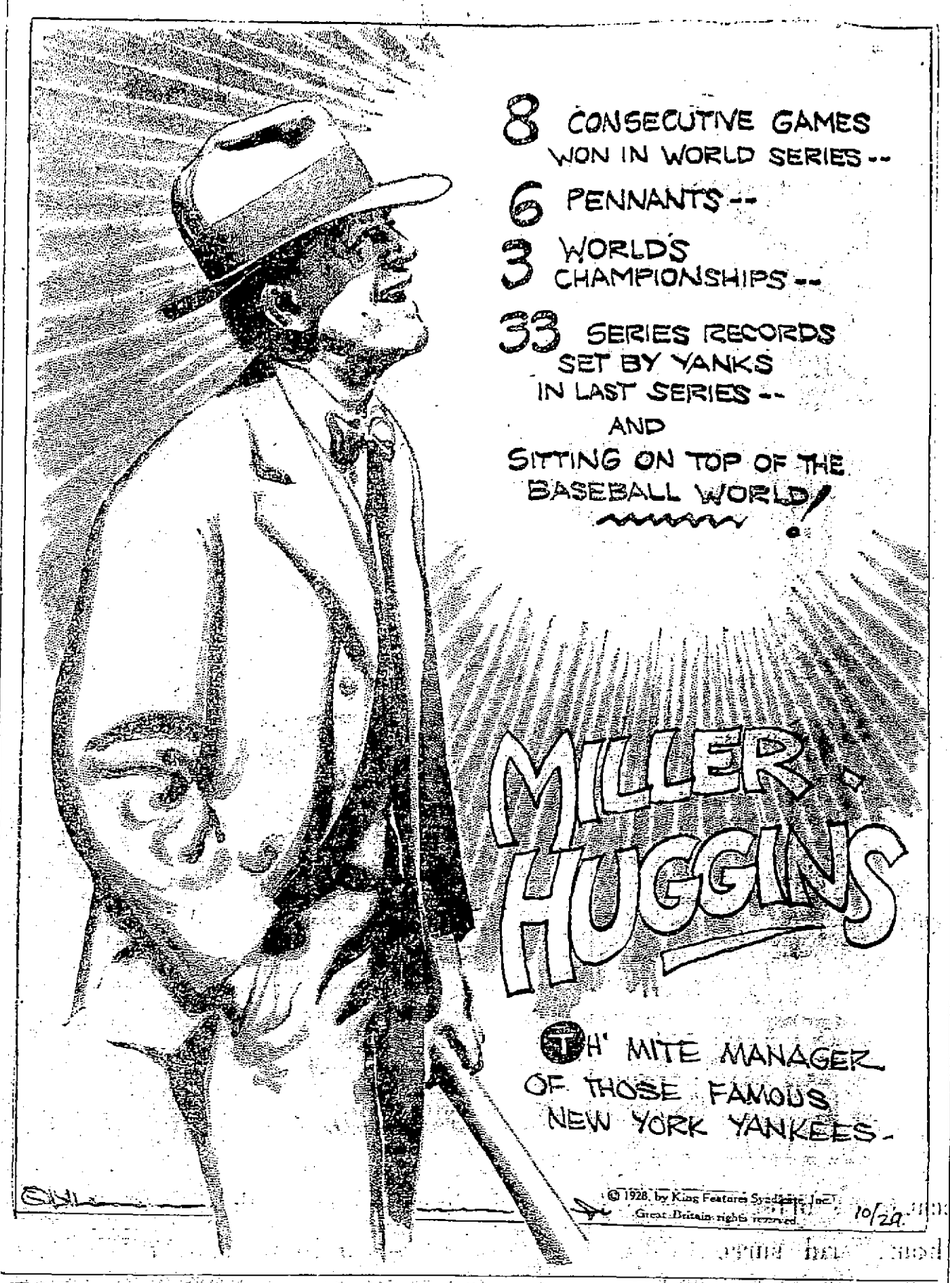
THE MIGHTY MITE



SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

A few seasons ago, there were few more promising ball clubs than the Detroit Tigers and few managers with the promise of Bucky Harris.

For one reason and another, the promises were not fulfilled. The Tigers scraped along in the first division for a while, and Harris had his day in the sun and society down in Washington, but neither ball club nor manager proved entirely satisfactory.

Now, for the 1929 season, Harris and Detroit have joined forces. It remains to be seen if the experiment is a success. When managing the Washington Senators, the former breaker boy seemed possessed at times of real baseball genius. He was a working combination of rough-neck and sentimentalist. Then he became a dude, and began to lose ball games.

President Frank Navin of the Detroit Tigers is somewhat skeptical about Bucky's being an ideal manager. Navin shies slightly at the society relatives by marriage Harris is taking along to Detroit.

"The customers," says the Detroit president, "may be they won't like it. They are used to rough necks."

JENNINGS A SUCCESS

However, Bucky has been a roughneck in his day and may be able to revert to type for the occasion. He probably cannot give Tiger fans the extremes indulged in by Tyrus Raymond Cobb, but he is not or was not, at least, too soft for wear.

The most successful Detroit manager was Hughie Jennings, but not under Cobb and Moriarty. They are not likely to reach the top immediately under Bucky Harris, although they belong back in the first division and he will certainly try to put the club there next year.

Harris has only a one-year contract, one of those "make good or get out" affairs. He was relieved as manager and put upon the reserve list of the Senators following the close of the 1928 season.

SENATORS DISAPPOINT

The Senators, pennant winners in 1924 and 1925, were a great disappointment this year. Part of the time they were dusting along in the cellar. The club was slow to develop its promising pitching strength which may very likely have been Bucky's fault. Certainly, towards the close of the race, Washington was getting better than any club in the American league and was making much trouble for both the Athletics and the Yankees.

Harris will not have the same [illegible] material to deal with at [illegible] may be that Navin [illegible] some winter deals which will strengthen the Tigers in the box. Otherwise, the new manager will have to develop some raw material.

Harry Rice, obtained from St. Louis in one of those trades Detroit would rather not think too much about, may prove a much better player in 1929 than he was in 1928, and he still was quite an outfielder. Domestic worries may have had something to do with Harry's failure to star.

The American League race next season should be tighter than it has been for some time. Walter Johnson probably will have some success at Washington in his first season as manager. The Tigers may be expected to do better under Harris.

GOPHERS ARE KNOCKED OUT OF BIG RACE

Ohio State or Iowa Favored To Win Annual Mid-Western Grid Honors.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.— Another team—Minnesota—was eliminated from the western conference championship race Saturday, leaving Illinois, Ohio and Iowa to battle it out for the title.

Iowa and Ohio clash, at Columbus November 10, and the Buckeyes play Illinois in the final game of the season November 24, making it certain that not more than two of the teams will go through the season undefeated.

Wisconsin also is in the undefeated class but has a tie with Purdue, previously defeated by Minnesota, to mar its record.

Minnesota's 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of a hard fighting Iowa team was the only thing that resembled an upset in Saturday's Big Ten play, although both Wisconsin and Illinois were hard pressed to win from teams which were "doped" as easy victims.

RUN TRUE TO FORM

Big Ten games have run remarkably true to form this season. Purdue's unlooked for tie with Wisconsin and Iowa's triumph over Minnesota were the only contests even remotely resembling "upsets."

Michigan's determined fight against Wisconsin and Northwestern's showing against Illinois indicated both of these teams have more power than their percentage indicated.

The other Big Ten games were productive of little excitement. Purdue piled up a 40 to 0 count against Chicago, and Ohio won easily from Indiana, 13 to 0.

The Iowa-Minnesota game proved to be one of the hardest fought, yet cleanest game, played in Big Ten circles for years. While the "bone crushers" had an advantage in yardage gained, the Hawkeyes refused to be overawed by Minnesota's reputation.

IOWA STANDS OUT

As a result of the victory, Iowa, which finished last in the 1926 and 1927 Big Ten races, stands out as a good prospect for the championship.

This week's games can do little to change the Big Ten standings as five of the teams are playing outside the conference and a sixth will be idle. Illinois, which meets Michigan, is the only leader to play a conference opponent. Northwestern and Minnesota play the other conference tilt.

Ohio, Wisconsin and Chicago are billed for intersectional contests with Princeton, Alabama and Pennsylvania respectively, while Iowa and Purdue have "breathers" against South Dakota and Case.

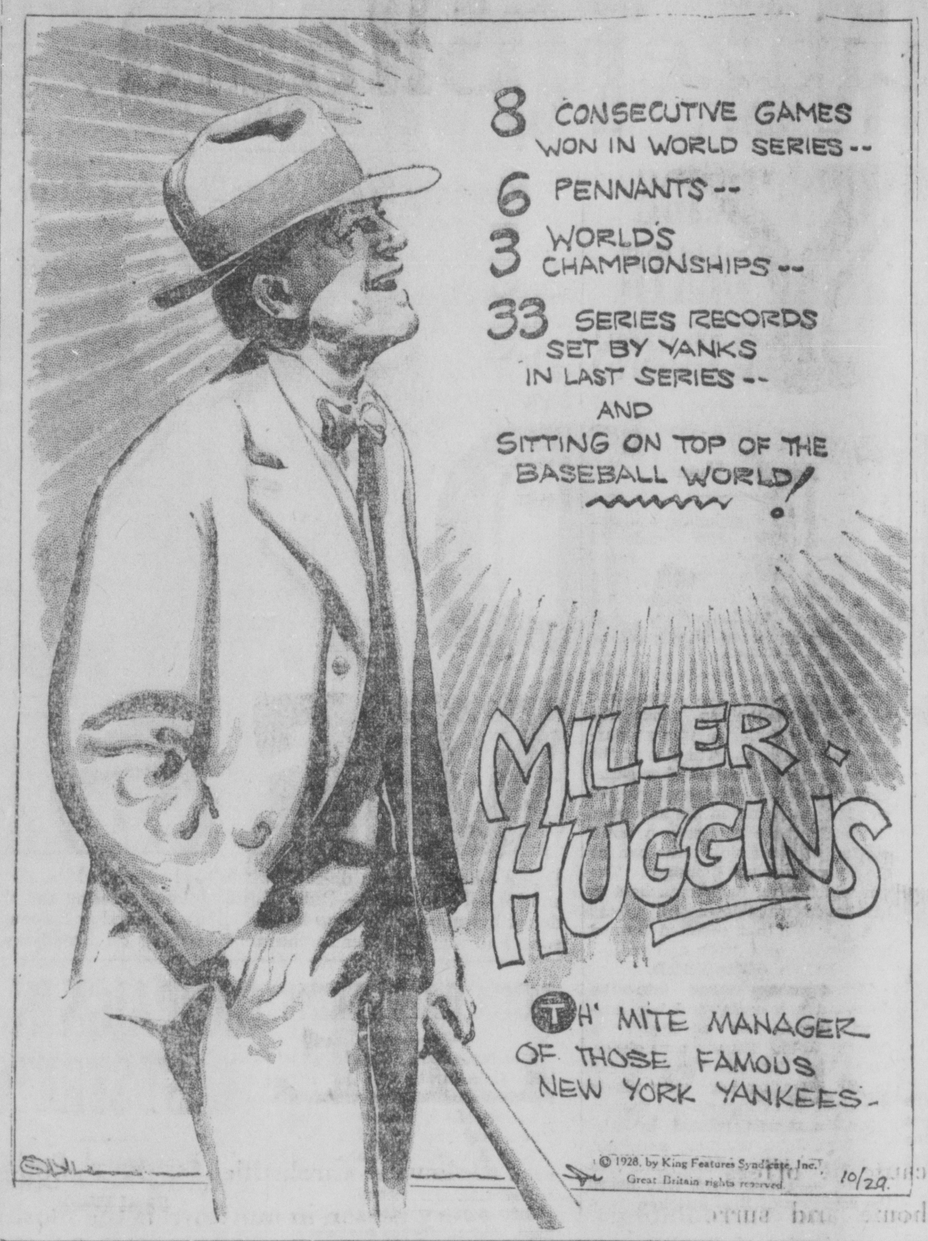
Be not discouraged, if all else has failed, for there remains Konjola, the master remedy. Its chief fame rests upon its unbounded success in cases that have resisted treatment year after year. Take the case of Mr. A. R. McElwain, 641 Grandview Avenue, Steubenville, O., who says:

"Though hungry I could not eat, for the pains that followed were torture. Then came terrific headaches, lasting for days. My kidneys were sorely affected, and because of this I lost much sleep at night. My ankles were swollen, and pains pierced my limbs and back. Nothing helped me, and my work in the steel mills became almost impossible. Listening to advice, I started on Konjola; it was exactly what I needed and never found before. A brief treatment and I was a new man, well in every way: freed from all my aches and pains. My strength is returning day by day, and my work is a joy. Konjola is wonderful beyond words. I hope this message reaches all who are going through what I did and from the suffering that this amazing medicine saved me."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Mykrantz Pharmacy and by all the leading druggists in every town throughout this entire section.—Adv.

THE MIGHTY MITE



SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

A few seasons ago, there were few more promising ball clubs than the Detroit Tigers and few managers with the promise of Bucky Harris.

For one reason and another, the promises were not fulfilled. The Tigers scraped along in the first division for a while, and Harris had his day in the sun and society down in Washington, but neither ball club nor manager proved entirely satisfactory.

Now, for the 1929 season, Harris and Detroit have joined forces. It remains to be seen if the experiment is a success. When managing the Washington Senators, the former breaker boy seemed possessed at times of real baseball genius. He was a working combination of rough-neck and sentimentalist. Then he became a dude, and began to lose ball games.

President Frank Navin of the Detroit Tigers is somewhat skeptical about Bucky's being an ideal manager. Navin shies slightly at the society relatives by marriage Harris is taking along to Detroit.

"The customers," says the Detroit president, "may be they won't like it. They are used to rough necks."

JENNINGS A SUCCESS

However, Bucky has been a roughneck in his day and may be able to revert to type for the occasion. He probably cannot give Tiger fans the extremes indulged in by Tyrus Raymond Cobb, but he is not or was not, at least, too soft for wear.

The most successful Detroit manager was Hughie Jennings, but not under Cobb and Moriarty. They are not likely to reach the top immediately under Bucky Harris, although they belong back in the first division and he will certainly try to put the club there next year.

Harris has only a one-year contract, one of those "make good or get out" affairs. He was relieved as manager and put upon the reserve list of the Senators following the close of the 1928 season.

SENATORS DISAPPOINT

The Senators, pennant winners in 1924 and 1925, were a great disappointment this year. Part of the time they were dusting along in the cellar. The club was slow to develop its promising pitching strength which may very likely have been Bucky's fault. Certainly, towards the close of the race, Washington was getting better than any club in the American league and was making much trouble for both the Athletics and the Yankees.

Harris will not have the same pitching material to deal with at Detroit. It may be that Navin will permit some winter deals which will strengthen the Tigers in the box. Otherwise, the new manager will have to develop some raw material.

Harry Rice, obtained from St. Louis in one of those trades Detroit would rather not think too much about, may prove a much better player in 1929 than he was in 1928, and he still was quite an outfielder. Domestic worries may have had something to do with Harry's failure to star.

The American League race next season should be tighter than it has been for some time. Walter Johnson probably will have some success at Washington in his first season as manager. The Tigers may be expected to do better under Harris.

GOPHERS ARE KNOCKED OUT OF BIG RACE

Ohio State or Iowa Favored To Win Annual Mid-Western Grid Honors.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.— Another team—Minnesota—was eliminated from the western conference championship race Saturday, leaving Illinois, Ohio and Iowa to battle it out for the title.

Iowa and Ohio clash, at Columbus November 10, and the Buckeyes play Illinois in the final game of the season November 24, making it certain that not more than two of the teams will go through the season undefeated.

Wisconsin also is in the undefeated class but has a tie with Purdue, previously defeated by Minnesota, to mar its record.

Minnesota's 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of a hard fighting Iowa team was the only thing that resembled an upset in Saturday's Big Ten play, although both Wisconsin and Illinois were hard pressed to win from teams which were "doped" as easy victims.

RUN TRUE TO FORM

Big Ten games have run remarkably true to form this season. Purdue's unlooked for tie with Wisconsin and Iowa's triumph over Minnesota were the only contests even remotely resembling "upsets."

Michigan's determined fight against Wisconsin and Northwestern's showing against Illinois indicated both of these teams have more power than their percentage indicated.

The other Big Ten games were productive of little excitement. Purdue piled up a 40 to 0 count against Chicago, and Ohio won easily from Indiana, 13 to 0.

The Iowa-Minnesota game proved to be one of the hardest fought, yet cleanest game, played in Big Ten circles for years. While the "bone crushers" had an advantage in yardage gained, the Hawkeyes refused to be overawed by Minnesota's reputation.

IOWA STANDS OUT

As a result of the victory, Iowa, which finished last in the 1926 and 1927 Big Ten races, stands out as a good prospect for the championship.

This week's games can do little to change the Big Ten standings as five of the teams are playing outside the conference and a sixth will be idle. Illinois, which meets Michigan, is the only leader to play a conference opponent. Northwestern and Minnesota play the other conference tilt.

Ohio, Wisconsin and Chicago are billed for intersectional contests with Princeton, Alabama and Pennsylvania respectively, while Iowa and Purdue have "breathers" against South Dakota and Case.

Interesting Figures On Friday's Game Are Assembled For Fans.

(By JOHN HEISKELL)

Circleville, although performing well in the game against Clarksburg last Friday, did not really show what it is capable of doing. The Tigers, although outplaying Clarksburg in every phase of the game, missed many more tackles than it should. This alone gave Clarksburg the majority of its gains.

Next Friday when the Tigers meet McClain they will be ready again to settle down and play the football they are capable of playing.

CHILDREN OF 'INFERIORS'

Once again a serious surveyor of the social scene has made the discovery that poor people have more babies than rich people.

Dr. Henry D Chapin, writing in the Review of Reviews, points out that "everywhere the poorest and least efficient have the largest families."

The worthy doctor adds that it is quality and not quantity that is desired in the human race, and says that "the fecundity of the inferior classes should be discovered."

For a good many years complaints such as this have been voiced recurrently And, on the surface, they seem justified It seems rather obvious that a child brought up by educated parents who have ample means to give him good medical care and a complete education will make a much better citizen that a child born in the slums or on a rundown farm, with parents who are forever pressed by poverty.

Yes, it seems obvious. But is doesn't work out that way

It certainly is natural and human to wish that all children might have as many advantages and pleasures as possible. It makes our hearts ache to think of youngsters who have to think about earning their livings before they are out of short-breeches. Yet the world seems to be so constituted that a certain amount of hardship is necessary for the development of strength Nature is quite calloused and hard-boiled about it. Hardiness comes only from combat.

The list of men who, by force of character and ability, have helped shape the course of history is a long one; and if you will examine it you will find that most of the names are names of men who were born to this lamentably fecund "inferior class" that Dr. Chapin speaks about

Genius is not something that can be foreseen in advance, and it does not appear where you might expect. A baby born in a backalley kitchen or a frontier log cabin is quite as apt to have it as a baby born in a mansion. It is not without significance that the phrase "from log cabin to White House" is a byword in this country. The boy who has to fight for everything he gets is sure to develop to the utmost all of his latent capacities; the boy whose early battles are fought for him is not.

Let's stop worrying about birth rates among the rich and the poor. They have always been just about as they are now. If the world were to be wrecked thereby it would have been wrecked long ago.

THE BIG GRAIN YIELD

You would think, offhand, that the man who makes his living by raising food products on the farm would be delighted with a big yield. The more the better, that sounds quite reasonable.

But it doesn't work out that way. The wheat price, right now, is away down, and it is going lower. Why? Simply because there are bumper crops everywhere, from Canada to the Argentine. Nature is bountiful and kind this year; and the result is that the men who depend on nature's bounty are going broke.

That simple fact testifies more eloquently than anything else to the fact that we need to do something about the farm situation Something is badly out of joint somewhere when a year of plenty is a year of want At some place in our economic machine we have prevented the natural order of things.

TRAIN COMPETITION

If you ask the average easterner to name the country's finest "crack" trains he probably will name the Broadway Limited and the Twentieth Century and let it go at that. Few easterners realize that the really luxurious speedy trains are found, not in the east, but on the lines west of Chicago.

The Chicago & Northwestern is now advertising its Corn King Limited, running between Chicago Des Moines, Sioux City and Omaha, as "the finest train in the world," Whether the train actually rates that title we don't know, never having ridden on it; but the western lines have many others to compete with it.

There is, for instance, the Oriental Limited of the Great Northern. There is the Olympian of the Milwaukee, the Overland Limited of the Union Pacific; the Golden State Limited of the Southern Pacific; The Chief, of the Santa Fe, the North Coast Limited of the Northern Pacific; the Panama Limited of the Illinois Central All of these are magnificent trains Let the easterner, who thinks the addition of a club car and a car with valet and maid service makes a train a "crack," take a trip on one of them. He'll have his eyes opened.

A Dialogue

FOR CHRIST OR THE DEVIL or, a Compassionate Call to Sinners.

To leave the Service of the Devil, and become obedient Members of Faithful Subjects, of Christ's Kingdom

Drunkard.— Pray, what Party or Kingdom do I delong to?

Min.— I'll give you, from God's Word, a List of several Sins, or Works of the Devil, that keep men out of Heaven

They are these seventeen 1 Adultery 2 Fornication 3 Uncleanness 4. Lasciviousness 5 Idolatry 6 Witchcraft 7 Hatred. 8. Variance 9 Emulations. 10. Wrath 11. Strife. 12 Seditions. 13 Heresies 14 Envyings. 15 Murders. 16 Drunkenness. 17 Revellings They which do such things, shall not inherit the Kingdom of God.

In this Glass of Truth you plainly see that Drunkards and Enemies to God, and Labourers in the Devil's Kingdom.

Drunkard.—I do no harm to any one, and therefore I can't see how I serve the Devil.

Min.—No harm do you say, why you don't abuse your own Being, which is God's Handy-work? Don't you despise God's law, and set at naught his authority, which forbids Drunkenness, and by so doing don't you honor and serve the Devil? For the Time to come then repent and forsake this Sin, and let St. Peter's Advice be the Rule of your Life; i. e., Be sober, be viligant, because your enemy, the Devil, as a roaring Lion, walks about seeking whom he may devour; whom resist stedfast in the Faith

Profane Swearer I don't find that I and in that black Catalogue Sabbath Breaker. Nor am I condemned there.

Min.— But you are both condemned by the express Word of God; the former in the Third Commandment, and the latter in the Fourth, so that your condemning Gilt, or Root of Hell, lies within you, and will remain there till it be removed by Repentance and Amendment of Life

Profane Swearer.— I mean no harm when I swear; I don't design to affront or dishonor God.

Min.—Whether you design it or not, you really do it, and so are guilty, as God himself declares.

Profane Swearer— It is I own a foolish Habit that I have got! but as I meant no Harm, I thought there had been none.

Min.—It is a Sing that a Man is in a dreadful State, in a State next to Reprobation, when he can thus go on in Kingdom of Destruction, without thought and concern, and abuse God, and break his commands without sorrow and agoish of Heart.

For the future let this declaration of God be always before you Them that honour me, I will honour: and they that despise me, shall be lightly esteemed

In the meantime Janet is falling in love with Leonard She goes driving with him in his new car, but they quarrel, and he calls her a gold-digger The next morning he sends her a small gold shovel

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXII.

JANET'S first reaction on receiving the little gold shovel from Leonard was amusement. What a fool he was take the mental attitude that she cared for money because she had advised him against gambling on the Stock Exchange! She did not sense that Leonard's childish anger and resentment were born of his love for her. And then her amusement gave way to resentment, so that she telephoned to Leonard and plunged into a spirited row with him. By this time Leonard was anxious to make peace, but Janet would have none of it.

"Can't you take a joke?" Leonard pleaded. "Would I go to the expense and trouble of sending a gold shovel to a girl if I really thought she was a gold-digger? Use your intelligence, my good woman!"

"You'll have to do a bit more than try to laugh your way out of it!" Janet insisted. "Like all men, you will try to make out that the thing is a joke when you have gone rather too far" She clicked up the receiver without waiting to hear more.

It was the same morning that John Pettibone-Shrady came to sit for his portrait. When the sitting was over and Chester Quigg had been called out of the room, the young millionaire turned to Janet.

"Do you dance, Miss Wilde?" he asked in his conventional voice. "I have to go to a Charity Ball—one of the things my mother is interested in—and I was wondering if I could persuade you to let me take you. It's next Wednesday. It would be so nice if I might call and take you to dinner somewhere first."

Janet decided that it would amuse her, so that the following Wednesday evening she found herself sitting at a little table at an expensively exclusive restaurant in the East Fifties She was in formal evening dress and so was John. This rather emphasized the entire formality of the evening. The evening had the charm of novelty, but as it wore on, secretly Janet was a little bored.

On her return to the studio she found Alice's light burning

"I couldn't sleep until you got back!" Alice called out affectionately. "Do come in and tell me all about it."

Janet sat down on the edge of the child's bed, and rapidly sketched the evening for her.

"I do not think that you would be very happy if you married Mr. Pettibone-Shrady." Alice said in her grown-up way. "He would probably need just as much soothing as one of us, and I think that it would be a little incongru—a little incong——"

"Incongruous?" Janet politely assisted.

A dressing-gown thrown over the foot of the bed moved. It seemed to stretch itself and then walk slowly towards Janet. Investigation showed that the Critic was beneath the dressing gown, which explained the apparent phenomenon.

There followed shrieks of childlike laughter! Gone was the little philosopher with the four-syllabled words, and in her place was just a laughing, romping figure that jumped wildly from bed to chase the Critic out of the room, down the stairs of the duplex apartment, and round and round the big studio.

One evening, Frank telephoned and said that he wanted to come to the studio and bring a girl with him.

When he arrived, Janet was intensely amused, for the girl with him proved to be quite the tiniest person, apart from a dwarf that she had ever seen.

Miss Cora Niles was a little bit of a thing who, despite very high heels, came up to Janet's shoulder, while she could easily stand under Frank's outstretched arm She was as pretty as a doll with masses of black curls, big black eyes and a charming little figure. It was obvious to Janet's amused eyes that already Miss Niles ruled Frank with a rod of iron He, on his side, seemed to be entirely under the spell of his "pocket-Venus" as he called her, and appeared to be filled with a great desire to protect her.

Janet found that she liked the minute Cora who, it seemed was extremely discontented with life as she found it. She rattled on to Janet about her difficulties, and once when Frank interrupted her, she turned on him sharply.

"I wish you'd have the manners not to interrupt people," she complained.

"I'm sorry, darling," Frank apologized

"What have you done to him?" Janet asked. "That's the first time in history that I have heard Frank apologize."

Cora laughed at this. "He's quite easy to manage," she said. "I think he's been spoilt."

"What do you think of her?" Frank wanted to know when he followed Janet out into the kitchen, where she was going to cut some sandwiches.

"I think she's sweet," Janet assured him "but what's the relationship?"

"I'm going to marry her if it's the last thing I do!" her brother assured her "Somebody has to stand between that little thing and the world But she won't think of marrying until I'm out of debt. There's that thousand I owe Leonard——" He clapped his hand suddenly over his mouth.

"You owe Leonard a thousand?" Janet said slowly. "That money you owed in Florida! And you told me Augustus Slade lent it to you! Why did you lie to me?"

"Leonard didn't want to tell you," Frank answered. "I never meant to let it go Don't let him know I told you."

"I shall do precisely what I think best," Janet retorted. "Oh, Frank! I wish you hadn't borrowed it from Leonard Quigg!"

"Why not?" he demanded. "Sounds as though you didn't like him."

"Perhaps I like him too well!" It was out before Janet could stop herself.

Frank whistled "Like that, is it?"

"No, it isn't!" Janet took it back. "And if ever you hint to Leonard what I said without thinking—because it isn't true, see what I'll do to you with Cora!"

"Well, you needn't threaten me," Frank went on "I'll keep my mouth shut, and I've already started repaying Leonard. I gave him a hundred only yesterday So cut the tragedy."

While Cora was putting on her hat, Janet had a word with her.

"I hear you're making Frank pay his debts," she said tentatively.

"Of course I am!" the girl answered. "I'm really very proud of him, because he is trying so hard, but I wouldn't let him know it for the world." Then, "Come and put my rubbers!" she commanded Frank briskly.

Smilingly Frank knelt to do her bidding, and worried as Janet was at learning about Leonard's loan, she laughed at the complete conquest of her brother.

CAMPAIGN LOG

(By United Press)

Monday, October 29.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith carried his campaign for the presidency into Maryland after spending the week-end at the estate of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Raskob told Smith there was a possibility that Pennsylvania, long considered a Republican stronghold, would go Democratic this year.

Eliminating Nebraska and Wyoming from his homeward bound route to Palo Alto, Cal., Herbert Hoover planned to go through Kansas and Colorado instead and make a speech in Pueblo, Col., Saturday night. Hoover will make four speeches on his way home; the first at Cumberland, Md., a second at Louisville, and a third at St Louis The fourth will be the Pueblo address

Andrew Mellon, in a statement to voters, asked a majority of Republicans in the senate and house for the support of Herbert Hoover if he is elected

LETTERS TO EDITOR

OPPOSES HOSPITAL

Editor Circleville Herald.—Once upon a time a sportsman wanted to go fishing for fish. He invested in a $50 pole and $10 reel on which was wound a $5 silk water proof line. More money went for a pair of high hip boots and a fancy creel. Then he went fishing. Home came he with a quarter's worth of fish The season soon closed and his outfit was of no further use to him.

Might we find ourselves in the same predicament should we vote a $75,000 bond issue on the already burdened taxpayers to acquire a $30,000 bequest with strings to it? Then if we would and equip a hospital, where are the patients to occupy it in sufficient numbers to sustain it? Our population is only a scant 7,000 souls, in an agricultural region, with no great region surrounding us from which to draw.

Within less than an hour's ambulance run, over the finest of paved highways is Columbus with its numerous and finely equipped hospitals, and some of the most eminent surgeons in the country Their doors are always open to our patients where they receive the best attention that medical and surgical science can give Then why burden our city with another bonded indebtedness, when we must sooner or later build a sewage disposal plant costing $150,000 or more?

If we vote the hospital bonds onto the taxpayers it will mean higher rents and costs of living to the working man He invariably pays increased taxes in increased rents

Our neighboring city of Chillicothe has a population numbering three times our own, with many industries and large taxable holdings. It has much outlying territory from which to draw patients Yet its hospital, a very well equipped one of 50 or more beds, is not self sustaining, although it has an endowment of $65,000, the income of which goes to its up-keep Circleville has no surrounding territory from which to draw The northern tier of townships of Pickaway-co are nearer to Columbus than to Circleville Would patients come away from proximity to a million dollar institution to a hundred thousand dollar one, from all the facilities of the former? We still would have to depend on the surgeons of Columbus for major operations and special cases

Think on these things, and vote "no" Nov. 6.

CHILDREN OF 'INFERIORS'

Once again a serious surveyor of the social scene has made the discovery that poor people have more babies than rich people.

Dr. Henry D. Chapin, writing in the Review of Reviews, points out that "everywhere the poorest and least efficient have the largest families."

The worthy doctor adds that it is quality and not quantity that is desired in the human race, and says that "the fecundity of the inferior classes should be discovered."

For a good many years complaints such as this have been voiced recurrently. And, on the surface, they seem justified. It seems rather obvious that a child brought up by educated parents who have ample means to give him good medical care and a complete education will make a much better citizen that a child born in the slums or on a rundown farm, with parents who are forever pressed by poverty.

Yes, it seems obvious. But is doesn't work out that way.

It certainly is natural and human to wish that all children might have as many advantages and pleasures as possible. It makes our hearts ache to think of youngsters who have to think about earning their livings before they are out of short breeches. Yet the world seems to be so constituted that a certain amount of hardship is necessary for the development of strength. Nature is quite calloused and hard-boiled about it. Hardiness comes only from combat.

The list of men who, by force of character and ability, have helped shape the course of history is a long one; and if you will examine it you will find that most of the names are names of men who were born to this lamentably fecund "inferior class" that Dr. Chapin speaks about.

Genius is not something that can be foreseen in advance, and it does not appear where you might expect. A baby born in a back-alley kitchen or a frontier log cabin is quite as apt to have it as a baby born in a mansion. It is not without significance that the phrase "from log cabin to White House" is a byword in this country. The boy who has to fight for everything he gets is sure to develop to the utmost all of his latent capacities; the boy whose early battles are fought for him is not.

Let's stop worrying about birth rates among the rich and the poor. They have always been just about as they are now. If the world were to be wrecked thereby it would have been wrecked long ago.

THE BIG GRAIN YIELD

You would think, offhand, that the man who makes his living by raising food products on the farm would be delighted with a big yield. The more the better; that sounds quite reasonable.

But it doesn't work out that way. The wheat price, right now, is away down, and it is going lower. Why? Simply because there are bumper crops everywhere, from Canada to the Argentine. Nature is bountiful and kind this year; and the result is that the men who depend on nature's bounty are going broke.

That simple fact testifies more eloquently than anything else to the fact that we need to do something about the farm situation. Something is badly out of joint somewhere when a year of plenty is a year of want. At some place in our economic machine we have prevented the natural order of things.

TRAIN COMPETITION

If you ask the average easterner to name the country's finest "crack" trains he probably will name the Broadway Limited and the Twentieth Century and let it go at that. Few easterners realize that the really luxurious, speedly trains are found, not in the east, but on the lines west of Chicago.

The Chicago & Northwestern is now advertising its Corn King Limited, running between Chicago Des Moines, Sioux City and Omaha, as "the finest train in the world." Whether the train actually rates that title we don't know, never having ridden on it; but the western lines have many others to compete with it.

There is, for instance, the Oriental Limited of the Great Northern. There is the Olympian of the Milwaukee, the Overland Limited of the Union Pacific; the Golden State Limited of the Southern Pacific; The Chief, of the Sante Fe; the North Coast Limited of the Northern Pacific; the Panama Limited of the Illinois Central. All of these are magnificent trains. Let the easterner, who thinks the addition of a club car and a car with valet and maid service makes a train a "crack," take a trip on one of them. He'll have his eyes opened.

A Dialogue

FOR CHRIST OR THE DEVIL
or, a Compassionate Call to Sinners.

To leave the Service of the Devil, and become obedient Members of Faithful Subjects, of Christ's Kingdom.

In a dialogue betwixt a Minister and some of his Parishners.

Drunkard.— Pray, what Party or Kingdom do I delong to?

Min.— I'll give you, from God's Word, a List of several Sins, or Works of the Devil, that keep men out of Heaven.

They are these seventeen: 1. Adultery. 2. Fornication. 3. Uncleanness. 4. Lasciviousness. 5. Idolatry. 6. Witchcraft. 7. Hatred. 8. Variance. 9. Emulations. 10. Wrath. 11. Strife. 12. Seditions. 13. Herisies. 14. Envyings. 15. Murders. 16. Drunkenness. 17. Revellings. They which do such things, shall not inherit the Kingdom of God.

In this Glass of Truth you plainly see that Drunkards and Enemies to God, and Labourers in the Devil's Kingdom.

Drunkard.—I do no harm to any one, and therefore I can't see how I serve the Devil.

Min.—No harm do you say, why you don't abuse your own Being, which is God's Handy-work? Don't you despise God's law, and set at naught his authority, which forbids Drunkenness, and by so doing don't you honor and serve the Devil? For the Time to come then repent and forsake this Sin, and let St. Peter's Advice be the Rule of your Life; i. e. Be sober, be viligant, because your enemy, the Devil, as a roaring Lion, walks about seeking whom he may devour; whom resist stedfast in the Faith.

Profane Swearer. I don't find that I and in that black Catalogue Sabbath Breaker. Nor am I condemned there.

Min.— But you are both condemned by the express Word of God; the former in the Third Commandment, and the latter in the Fourth; so that your condemning Gilt, or Root of Hell, lies within you, and will remain there till it be removed by Repentance and Amendment of Life.

Profane Swearer.— I mean no harm when I swear; I don't design to affront or dishonor God.

Min.—Whether you design it or not, you really do it, and so are guilty, as God himself declares.

Profane Swearer— It is I own a foolish Habit that I have got! but as I meant no Harm, I thought there had been none.

Min.—It is a Sing that a Man is in a dreadful State, in a State next to Reprobation, when he can thus go on in Kingdom of Destruction, without thought and concern, and abuse God, and break his commands without sorrow and aguish of Heart.

For the future let this declaration of God be always before you Them that honour me, I will honour; and they that despise me, shall be lightly esteemed.

THEATRES

HAS CHORINE ROLE

Bebe Daniels, in her latest picture "Take Me Home," now showing at the Metropolitan theater, spent many weary hours practicing the various routines of high kicking movements which "every chorus girl knows" during the filming of that picture. The star was directed in this work by Fanchon, of the famous team of dance creators, Fanchon and Marco.

Bebe portrays the role of Peggy Lane, a chorine, in her new picture. Back-stage life in a big theater is authentically transplanted to the screen.

Neil Hamilton has the leading man's role. He portrays a youth who goes to Broadway to break into the show business and is helped in overcoming the many obstacles by Bebe. Lilyan Tashman, Doris Hill and Joe Brown have the chief supporting roles. The film was directed by Marshall Neilan.

FIRE "SHOT" FROM AIR.

When Edwin Carewe, directing Dolores Del Rio in "Ramona," showing at the Cliftona Theater Monday made the final episodes of the film, a movie camera caught the Indian massacre and the burning of the village from an aeroplane overhead.

Robert Kurrle, Carewe's first cameraman, did the shooting from above. Kurrle was seated in his own plane. The cameraman purchased the plane some months ago. It is an exact dulicate of the one used by Colonel Lindbergh in his Atlantic flight.

Howard Butt, chief electrical technician on the "Ramona" picture was in the pilot's seat during the time Kurrle cranked the scene below. Various shots were made from different heights.

MELODRAMA AT GRAND

Alan Hale and Virginia Bradford are starred in the feature at the Grand theater tonight "The Wreck of the Hesperus."

It is a splendid melodramatic attraction of storm washed decks and hate swept hearts. It is a thrill picture which will enthrall you from the opening to the closing scenes. A Century comedy and the Page Kiddie Band are also on the program.

NEVER BETTER IN HIS LIFE

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgelow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

WHEN Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor, dies, his young and pretty daughter, Janet, obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario, while her brother, Frank, an idler, goes South. Janet makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and Dr. David Churchill. When Montague insults her, Janet becomes Dr. Churchill's secretary. He tells her he is is in love with her and contemplates divorcing his wife, so Janet gives up her position and goes to live with Chester Quigg, Leonard's artist-uncle, and his charming little daughter, Alice. She learns how to placate old Mrs. Quigg, Chester's mother, and generally makes life pleasant for the Quiggs. Her brother, Frank, returns home broke and in debt, and accepts $1,000 from Leonard, secretly. In the meantime Janet is falling in love with Leonard. She goes driving with him in his new car, but they quarrel, and he calls her a gold-digger. The next morning he sends her a small gold shovel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXII.

JANET'S first reaction on receiving the little gold shovel from Leonard was amusement. What a fool he was take the mental attitude that she cared for money because she had advised him against gambling on the Stock Exchange! She did not sense that Leonard's childish anger and resentment were born of his love for her. And then her amusement gave way to resentment, so that she telephoned to Leonard and plunged into a spirited row with him. By this time Leonard was anxious to make peace, but Janet would have none of it.

"Can't you take a joke?" Leonard pleaded. "Would I go to the expense and trouble of sending a gold shovel to a girl if I really thought she was a gold-digger? Use your intelligence, my good woman!"

"You'll have to do a bit more than try to laugh your way out of it!" Janet insisted. "Like all men, you will try to make out that the thing is a joke when you have gone rather too far." She clicked up the receiver without waiting to hear more.

It was the same morning that John Pettibone-Shrady came to sit for his portrait. When the sitting was over and Chester Quigg had been called out of the room, the young millionaire turned to Janet.

"Do you dance, Miss Wilde?" he asked in his conventional voice. "I have to go to a Charity Ball—one of the things my mother is interested in—and I was wondering if I could persuade you to let me take you. It's next Wednesday. It would be so nice if I might call and take you to dinner somewhere first."

Janet decided that it would amuse her, so that the following Wednesday evening she found herself sitting at a little table at an expensively exclusive restaurant in the East Fifties. She was in formal evening dress and so was John. This rather emphasized the entire formality of the evening. The evening had the charm of novelty, but as it wore on, secretly Janet was a little bored.

On her return to the studio, she found Alice's light burning.

"I couldn't sleep until you got back!" Alice called out affectionately. "Do come in and tell me all about it."

Janet sat down on the edge of the child's bed, and rapidly sketched the evening for her.

"I do not think that you would be very happy if you married Mr. Pettibone-Shrady." Alice said in her grown-up way. "He would probably need just as much soothing as one of us, and I think that it would be a little incongru—a little incong——"

"Incongruous?" Janet politely assisted.

A dressing-gown thrown over the foot of the bed moved. It seemed to stretch itself and then walk slowly towards Janet. Investigation showed that the Critic was beneath the dressing gown, which explained the apparent phenomenon.

There followed shrieks of child-like laughter! Gone was the little philosopher with the four-syllabled words, and in her place was just a laughing, romping figure that jumped wildly from bed to chase the Critic out of the room, down the stairs of the duplex apartment, and round and round the big studio.

One evening, Frank telephoned and said that he wanted to come to the studio and bring a girl with him.

When he arrived, Janet was intensely amused, for the girl with him proved to be quite the tiniest person, apart from a dwarf that she had ever seen.

Miss Cora Niles was a little bit of a thing who, despite very high heels, came up to Janet's shoulder, while she could easily stand under Frank's outstretched arm. She was as pretty as a doll, with masses of black curls, big black eyes and a charming little figure. It was obvious to Janet's amused eyes that already Miss Niles ruled Frank with a rod of iron. He, on his side, seemed to be entirely under the spell of his "pocket-Venus" as he called her, and appeared to be filled with a great desire to protect her.

Janet found that she liked the minute Cora who, it seemed was extremely discontented with life as she found it. She rattled on to Janet about her difficulties, and once when Frank interrupted her, she turned on him sharply.

"I wish you'd have the manners not to interrupt people," she complained.

"I'm sorry, darling," Frank apologized.

"What have you done to him?" Janet asked. "That's the first time in history that I have heard Frank apologize."

Cora laughed at this. "He's quite easy to manage," she said. "I think he's been spoilt."

"What do you think of her?" Frank wanted to know when he followed Janet out into the kitchen, where she was going to cut some sandwiches.

"I think she's sweet," Janet assured him, "but what's the relationship?"

"I'm going to marry her if it's the last thing I do!" her brother assured her. "Somebody has to stand between that little thing and the world. But she won't think of marrying until I'm out of debt. There's that thousand I owe Leonard——" He clapped his hand suddenly over his mouth.

"You owe Leonard a thousand?" Janet said slowly. "That money you owed in Florida! And you told me Augustus Slade lent it to you! Why did you lie to me?"

"Leonard didn't want to tell you," Frank answered. "I never meant to let it go. Don't let him know I told you."

"I shall do precisely what I think best," Janet retorted. "Oh, Frank! I wish you hadn't borrowed it from Leonard Quigg!"

"Why not?" he demanded. "Sounds as though you didn't like him."

"Perhaps I like him too well!" It was out before Janet could stop herself.

Frank whistled. "Like that, is it?"

"No, it isn't!" Janet took it back. "And if ever you hint to Leonard what I said without thinking—because it isn't true, see what I'll do to you with Cora!"

"Well, you needn't threaten me," Frank went on. "I'll keep my mouth shut, and I've already started repaying Leonard. I gave him a hundred only yesterday. So cut the tragedy."

While Cora was putting on her hat, Janet had a word with her.

"I hear you're making Frank pay his debts," she said tentatively.

"Of course I am!" the girl answered. "I'm really very proud of him, because he is trying so hard, but I wouldn't let him know it for the world." Then, "Come and put my rubbers!" she commanded Frank briskly.

Smilingly Frank knelt to do her bidding, and worried as Janet was at learning about Leonard's loan, she laughed at the complete conquest of her brother.

CAMPAIGN LOG

(By United Press)
Monday, October 29.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith carried his campaign for the presidency into Maryland after spending the week-end at the estate of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Raskob told Smith there was a possibility that Pennsylvania, long considered a Republican stronghold, would go Democratic this year.

Eliminating Nebraska and Wyoming from his homeward bound route to Palo Alto, Cal., Herbert Hoover planned to go through Kansas and Colorado instead and make a speech in Pueblo, Col., Saturday night. Hoover will make four speeches on his way home; the first at Cumberland, Md., a second at Louisville, and a third at St. Louis. The fourth will be the Pueblo address.

Andrew Mellon, in a statement to voters, asked a majority of Republicans in the senate and house for the support of Herbert Hoover if he is elected.

ORGANIST PLEASING

Hubert Muck, organist at the Cliftona theater, played a beautiful musical score during the showing of "Ramona" Sunday night at that theater. The popular song, "Ramona" was played as a love theme throughout the picture, while his other offerings for the different scenes in the picture were carefully chosen and artistically adapted. His playing added a great deal to the fine program and was very pleasing to the large audience.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

OPPOSES HOSPITAL

Editor Circleville Herald:—Once upon a time a sportsman wanted to go fishing for fish. He invested in a $50 pole and $10 reel on which was wound a $5 silk water proof line. More money went for a pair of high hip boots and a fancy creel. Then he went fishing. Home came he with a quarter's worth of fish. The season soon closed and his outfit was of no further use to him.

Might we find ourselves in the same predicament should we vote a $75,000 bond issue on the already burdened taxpayers to acquire a $30,000 bequest with strings to it? Then if we would and equip a hospital, where are the patients to occupy it in sufficient numbers to sustain it? Our population is only a scant 7,000 souls, in an agricultural region, with no great region surrounding us from which to draw.

Within less than an hour's ambulance run, over the finest of paved highways is Columbus, with its numerous and finely equipped hospitals, and some of the most eminent surgeons in the country. Their doors are always open to our patients where they receive the best attention that medical and surgical science can give. Then why burden our city with another bonded indebtedness, when we must sooner or later build a sewage disposal plant costing $150,000 or more?

If we vote the hospital bonds onto the taxpayers it will mean higher rents and costs of living to the working man. He invariably pays increased taxes in increased rents.

Our neighboring city of Chillicothe has a population numbering three times our own, with many industries and large taxable holdings. It has much outlying territory from which to draw patients. Yet its hospital, a very well equipped one of 50 or more beds, is not self sustaining, although it has an endowment of $65,000, the income of which goes to its up-keep. Circleville has no surrounding territory from which to draw. The northern tier of townships of Pickaway-co are nearer to Columbus than to Circleville. Would patients come away from proximity to a million dollar institution to a hundred thousand dollar one, from all the facilities of the former? We still would have to depend on the surgeons of Columbus for major operations and special cases.

Think on these things, and vote "no" Nov. 6.

W. M. Reid.

Dog Crossing Guard

A dog guards the grade crossing over the cogwheel railroad to the convent of Montserrat, Spain, to which thousands of pilgrims and tourists make excursions. When he hears a train approaching, the dog jumps up and stands on his hind legs, bearing between one of his paws and his breast a red flag which signals road travelers to a stop.

Fashions

Enter the Fur Hat With Select Winter Millinery

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—This is the season of millinery surprises. Ideas that have not been used in a long time are being brought out to make hats more individual, and material trims almost hooted at, the last few seasons are receiving much acclaim

Fur is one of these innovations, and it is interesting to look back on its millinery history. Not since the days when the little fur caps of seal or beaver or some of the longer haired furs were employed as an accessory with the fur coat and the muff, have furs been accepted. The French have from time to time introduced fur as a trimming in some way, and just as surely the idea has been vetoed.

The feeling for furs is entirely for the varieties which are capable of dress-maker handling.

Patou is largely responsible for the predicted vogue of the fur hat and fur set. There are differences of opinion concerning the proportions of the muff which is in the course of rejuvenation — Patou is inclined to large muffs as well as small but other creators see more merit in muffs so diminutive that they are hardly large enough to encompass both hands

Fashions

Enter the Fur Hat With Select Winter Millinery

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—This is the season of millinery surprises. Ideas that have not been used in a long time are being brought out to make hats more individual, and material trims almost hooted at, the last few seasons are receiving much acclaim.

Fur is one of these innovations, and it is interesting to look back on its millinery history. Not since the days when the little fur caps of seal or beaver or some of the longer haired furs were employed as an accessory with the fur coat and the muff, have furs been accepted. The French have from time to time introduced fur as a trimming in some way, and just as surely the idea has been vetoed.

The feeling for furs is entirely for the varieties which are capable of dress-maker handling.

Patou is largely responsible for the predicted vogue of the fur hat and fur set. There are differences of opinion concerning the proportions of the muff which is in the course of rejuvenation — Patou is inclined to large muffs as well as small but other creators see more merit in muffs so diminutive that they are hardly large enough to encompass both hands.
